BOONE ACCUSES PRISON HEAD OF 'POOR JUDGMENT'

CORRECTIONS Commissioner John O. Boone said Wednesday "apparently...poor judgement" by the superintendent of Norfolk Prison Colony allowed convicted murderer Walter Elliott to make an ill-fated break for freedom that led to the deaths of four persons, including two Norfolk employees, his wife and himself. Gov. Francis W. Sargent concurred with Boone's tentative indictment of Norfolk Superintendent George H. Bohlinger III, but cautioned that a final assessment of blame for Monday's abortive escape attempt would have to await the report of a five-member committee, impaneled Tuesday to probe the affair. That committee, headed by former Corrections Commissioner John Gavin, was to begin its investigation today. Sargent and Boone met with newsmen Wednesday after a one-hour, 45minute, closed door meeting with seven representatives of the state's prison guards unions in the governor's State House office. Dominic Presti, the spokesman for the guards and head of the guards' union at Walpole Correctional Institute, who hoped to press Sargent for Boone's dismissal, characterized the meeting as a failure and charged he was not allowed to present points and demands he had raised in the wake of the Norfolk shootings Monday. Boone told newsmen Bohlinger who revealed Tuesday he had received information from various sources that Elliott was planning a break, had the power and should have locked Elliott up based on the information he had received. "He chose in his discretion not to lock the man up," said Boone. "Apparently, it was a poor judgement."

DEMOCRATS READY TO PICK THEIR OWN VEEP CHOICE

SEVERAL MEMBERS of the Democratic National Committee were reported Wednesday to be ready to submit alternatives as the party's vice presidential candidate if they are dissatisfied with Sen, George S. Mc-Govern's choice. McGovern will appear personally before the committee, at an emergency session Tuesday afternoon, to press for his preference as a successor to Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, who withdrew Monday night at the Democratic nominee's request, Although McGovern was still consulting with advisers, a highly placed source on his campaign staff said it appeared that Sen, Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, who was Hubert H. Humphrey's running mate in 1969, was the leading contender for the same spot on the ticket this year. Leaving his office for lunch, McGovern said he was still "giving careful thought to a number of possibilities" and taking his time in reaching a decision, which he promises to announce before Monday, "I haven't offered it to anybody,"

A FOREST FIRE roared uncontrolled along a six-mile front Wednesday in Big Sur, California, heading toward a 10,000 - acre wilderness of scenic California The fire consumed more than 3,000 acres of timber and brush since it burst into life Tuesday. About 1,200 campers and Boy Scouts fled the endangered areas. Fire officials brought in an army of more than 1,000 men with planes, helicopters, bulldozers and hand tools to fight the flames. "It is wide open" said Garry Munsey of the U.S. Forest Service. "It is going to get a lot larger before it is contained." The flames broke out Tuesday afternoon two miles north of the town of Big Sur. Inves. igators said there was evidence it started from an

STENNIS ASSAILS PROPOSED WAR FUNDS CUT-OFF

CHAIRMAN John C. Stennis of the Senate Armed Services Committee charged Wednesday a legislative cut-off of U.S. war funds would leave the United States at the mercy of North Vietnam. Denouncing the end-the-war amendments before the Senate, the Mississippi Democrat said "in all of American history there is no precedent that the legislative branch could move in and cut off actually appropriated funds for conduct of a war." Such a cut-off, loosely tied to a return of war the generosity of the North Vietnamese," Stennis said. Grossman Discusses Eagleton Democratic Party Future And

By CYNTHIA BLACK

Senator George McGovern must quickly turn his attention back to the "grass roots activitsts" that helped secure his nomination if he is to have any hopes of being elected, Newton Democratic National Committeeman Jerome Grossman said in an interview Tuesday.

Grossman, due to leave shortly for the national conclave that will select a successor to fill the now vacant vice presidential spot on the Democratic ticket, said unless the McGovern "movement" becomes "a movement the way it was,

Grossman said he thought. the democratic presidential nominee still had "plenty of time" to take action and that it was still possible to "reinspire" McGovern workers.

Grossman and fellow members of the Democratic National Committee are faced with the unpreceden-ted task of selecting a second vice president candi-date now that Sen. Thomas Eagleton has stepped down.

After news of Eagleton's hospitalizations during the 1960's for psychiatric treatment reached the public, Grossman was among the first of liberal very treatment spokesmen in the country to call for his resignation for the Democratic ticket.

> The committeeman explained that while he was sympathetic to the senator, he felt the party had to "put first things first," and "first things," he declared, are electing George McGovern and ending the war in Vietnam.

> "Once that is done," Grossman added, "then many other things will begin to flow and we can address ourselves to modernizing the necessary reforms to keep us up to date with changing situations."

Mrs. Pines went on to say that the discontinuance of this route was "irresponsible" of the MBTA.

Common Scolds

Latest example of our busy court systems digging up out-moded laws which in some cases date their origin before the Puritans, comes from New Jersey.

Hauled before a county judge was a woman, re-cently moved from Long Island, N.Y., to a small New Jersey township. The new arrival apparently had a few frustrations adjusting to her new environs and during the adjustment took time out to level sundry criticisms of her new neighbors.

The neighbors appealed to the police to do something about the talkative new-comer. At first the police could find nothing in the books which could justify action by them. Finally some not-too-easily discouraged researcher found an old law which appeared to fit the

The law was sort of simple. It forbid women (no mention was made of men) from acting as common scolds.

Off to the courthouse marched the lawyers, the neighbors' witnesses and the accused new-comer. The law, it appears, had been on the county books for many years but no convictions were attributed to it since

The judge didn't waste much time with the case although he later expressed an opinion that in these parlous days everyone who did a little fault-finding might happen to find their way to a public ducking stool if they were females.

He threw the case out of court on sort of a technicality, pointing out that whoever wrote the cld law had failed to include men as potential scolds, and it was, therefore, unconstitutional.

It's difficult today to find justification of the old Common Scolds law and while most of them may have moved away from the back fences to the cocktail lounges or even sewing clubs, there are times when a modern society can use their tongues.

On instance would be the suggestion of a TV station that it be permitted to record the ducking punishment on film in event the accused was found guilty.

Grand Central Finale

Recent years haven't been kind to New York's Old Grand Central Station. Its magnificent grand sweep under its high-vaulted roof is broken by small comty rather than beauty.

Maybe tens of thousands of shuffling human feet have forever robbed its broad stairs of the gleam they position where he might become President of the White next autumn if McGovern succeeds in toppling once knew, and lighting reduced to barest essentials meets some minimum standard.

phase of debate. The structure is actually living on dency borrowed time.

Back in the summer of 1967 New York City's Landmarks Preservation Commission officially designated the big terminal "one of the great buildings of Senator Eagleton. He was held up to embarrassment in America" which evokes a spirit that is unique in this the eyes of the entire world. His chances even of achievcity and combines distinguished architecture with a ing reelection to the Senate have been jeopardized. brilliant engineering solution, wedded to one of the most fabulous railroad terminals of our time."

That was quite a tribute and even as short a time back as 1967 was deserving of attention.

The Preservation Commission, however, despite its command of superlatives will not have the last word on the ultimate fate of the Grand Central.

The courts will be coming up soon with a decision

The Grand Central, as has been brought out in a series of judicial hearings, stands squat upon property that has been described not only the most valuable commercial area in New York but in the entire world.

There are those who see its future not as a museum to a great past it served so well nor as a last frontier to hold the line while some such dream as Amtrack and a railroad renaissance come true.

Those old folks who enjoyed it in its prime will never forget the terminal.

Its chance of permanent revival in the heart of Manhattan is slim.

-Political Highlights-

It was obvious from the start that Eagleton would have to get off the Democratic ticket and that the longer he delayed in doing it the worse the situation would Eagleton talked altogether too much and most of the time said the wrong things. His declaration that he would never get off the Democratic ticket was brave but unwise.

Columnist Jack Anderson fogged up the situation with his unsubstantiated allegations that Eagleton had been arrested for drunken driving.

But the fact remained that Eagleton was a millstone around McGovern's neck and that both McGovern and Eagleton to some extent were responsible for the predicament in which they found themselves.

McGovern's own supporters, who had been ready a short time before to set out to conquer the country, became discouraged and confused, their banners trailing in the dust

If he did not know that, he is not the sound politician he is supposed to be.

There was no need of any hasty, frantic selection of a Vice Presidential running mate, with the lastminute telephone calls and the final hurried choice between Eagleton and Mayor Kevin H. Cabinet Job May Be Offered To White If McGovern Wins

Boston Mayor Kevin H. White probably will be offered a position in Senator George S. McGovern's Cabinet if McGovern is elected President next November.

McGovern is under some personal obligation to White. He gave the Boston Mayor reason to believe he would be nominated as the Democratic candidate for Vice President and then crushed his hopes after raising them.

Mayor White, who has close contacts with Democratic Mayors across the country, almost certainly will be requested to take a leading role in the McGov-stalled until the legislators had closed their desks and

Two veteran law-makers are fearful that Demo cratic chances of regaining the Governorship in 1974 will be lessened if State Conventions are held that year to endorse candidates for Governor and other state-wide offices.

Bellwether Illinois Seems Headed For Nixon Column

Illinois is one of the truly bellwether states in Union in Presidential elections. It has voted for Newton ballot will be done in conjunction with other organizations in various it will go for President Nixon in next November's election although the trend, of course, could change in the next three months. Mr. Nixon carried Illinois in 1968 but only by a plurality of 130,000 votes over Hubert H. Humphrey. Present surveys show Nixon picking up most of the conservative vote that went to George C. Wallace four years ago.

It also is virtually certain that Mayor Richard J. Daley will not support Senator George McGovern with the same vigor and euthsiasm with which he backed Hubert Humphrey. In fact, it is generally assumed in Chicago that Daley will ignore McGovern despite his "I am a loyal Democrat" pronouncement. Daley, it is believed, will concentrate his effort and energy on electing Democratic candidates to county offices in Cook County.

Ironically, it was Illinois, after Daley and his contignent had been given the heave-ho, which put Mc-Govern over the top at the Democratic national con-Vention. McGovern actually won only 14 of the 170-Illinois delegates in the state's Presidential Primary. He wound up with 119 votes after Mayor Daley and Newton was recently promoted to a clerical room manager at the Bailey Employment him dearly in the November election.

Spiro Seen Likely '76 GOP Candidate For President

Vice President Spiro Agnew is virtually certain to mercial stands thrown together under the aegis of utili- downs and has had shock treatment has nothing to be ern campaign, and in all probability White will do be the Republican candidate for President in 1976 if President Nixon is reelected to a second term next That should lead to the offer of a Cabinet post to November.

Some more liberal Republican probably will move forward to challenge him at the '76 GOP national convention, but Agnew will have solidified his position in his party after eight years in the Vice Presidency. The prospect of standing for the Presidency in 1976 may cause Spiro to change his political approach during the next four years. When Richard M. Nixon was Vice President and ited. Vic President Agnew has not done that. Nixon was always available to speak at a big fund-

He built up political friendships and obligations which meant convention votes when he sought the Republican nomination for President in 1968 and no one else was able to mount a serious challenge against him. Spiro Agnew has been more a loner in politics than was Richard Nixon before he became President. Agnew has gone in and out of states as the emissary for Nixon and made no real attempt to build political friendships with the local Republican leaders.

If he is interested in standing for the Presidency, as he undoubtedly is, he probably will adhere more closely during the next four years to the political pattern which proved so successful for Richard Nixon.

Sarge To Speak For Nixon But Wants No "Cheap Shots"

Governor Francis W. Sargent disclosed that he will campaign for the reelection of President Nixon but then took much of the good out of his statement He has either dealt or allowed one slap after from a White House standpoint by expressing the another at a city which gave him a remarkable vote hope that "they don't start the cheap shots."

This presumably was a slap at Vice President Agnew although the Governor declined to answer when he was asked if he was referring to Agnew's recent criticism of Senator McGovern and the Vice President's assertion that McGovern could perform "the Hanoi crawl."

The Governor himself was guilty of what some observers considered a "cheap shot," when, in commenting upon President Nixon's appointment of Democrat John Connally as Secretary of the Treasury, he for asked: "Can he add?" The answer is that Mr. Connally can add at least as well as some of the people Governor Sargent has brought from distant sections of the United States to fill state jobs in Massachusetts. Mr. Sargent, incidentally, considers that President Nixon has an uphill fight in Massachusetts but that he has a chance of carrying the Bay State and should not write it off. Mr. Nixon was swamped in Massachusetts by Hubert H. Humphrey in 1968. Since Massachusetts is both the most dovish and one of the most Democratic States in the Union, it probably would mean President Nixon was on his way, to victory if he even makes a strong run in defeat here. Governor Sargent, who has differed with President Nixon on a number of issues, will speak for him both in Massachusetts and outside the state.

Greater Distinction Needed Handling Welfare Fraud

Cheaper Dollar Makes Travel More Expensive By MURRAY J. BROWN UPI Travel Editor

The American tourist will generally have to pay slightly more than last year because of the devaluation of the U.S. dollar but travel abroad can still be a

So says a man who should know — Stephen S. Halsey, senior vice president and general manager of the travel division of American Express.

"Dollar devaluation makes it bit more expensive to travel outside the United States,' said, "but on the basis of what the dollar still buys overseas compared to what it buys here, the average American still has the best of it."

Halsey said that the loss in the purchasing power of the dollar "while it fluctuates from country to country, is still fairly modest.

As an example, he cited the British pound. Before the international monetary crisis last year, the pound was pegged at about $2.40. Now Americans are paying about $2.60, or roughly 8.5 per cent more.

"Generally, however, an American can buy more in Britain for a pound than the can in the United States for his $2.60," Halsey said, "To compound our advantage, American wage scales make the $2.60 — or the pound — easier to come by."

He said the same hilds true in other countries whose currencies have been revalued in relation to the dollar, such as France, West Grmany, Japan among othrs.

As for getting there, Halsey noted that major international airlines had agreed to substantial fare reductions on the transatlantic routes in 1972 before the currency crisis.

"But the effects of dollar devaluation are wiping out many of the intended savings, he said. "To compensate, the International Air Transport Association (IATA) has agreed to a three to seven per cent increase on the new ticket depending destination.

As a result,

Americans will end up paying about the same — or saightly more — than last year for most round trip tickets. There are some exceptions, he noted, including most 22-to-45 day "excursions." For instance, you can fly New York-London roundtrip for $313, or about $19 less than last summer.

A seasoned traveler himself, Halsey considers bargain hunting to be part of the fun of the game. Here are some suggestions he passed along:

Consider visiting countries where the dollar devaluation has had little or no effects on travel costs. Austria, Greece, Portugal, Spain and Yugoslavia are a mong countries still rated as "good buys" by travel professionals. Also Mexico and much of South America where the dollar's value has not changed. In fact, some hotels and restaurants in Mexico will even give discounts on bills paid in S. Dollars or travelers

Remember that hotel ccomm od ations transportation, etc. usually cost less and are more readily available in the so-called off-season months. For example, Paris in the spring, London in the fall, the Caribbean in the summer, and Scandinavia in the winter

—Check on packaged tours. Whole sale and retail operators offer thousands of economical allinclusive package deals for groups and individual travelers designed to fit most travel budgets.

In connection with packaged tours, Halsey said American Express will hold the line on previously published 1972 prices for the land portions even through they are based on the pre-devalued dollar. Air fares will have to comply with JATA schedules.

"This year's tours were planned early in 1971 and bulk contracts for hotel space, local sightseeing, restaurants and other features were drawn in 1971 before the dollar devaluation," he said. "But American Express has always held to published prices which means we will stick to prices shown in our Europe (tours) Book for 1972."

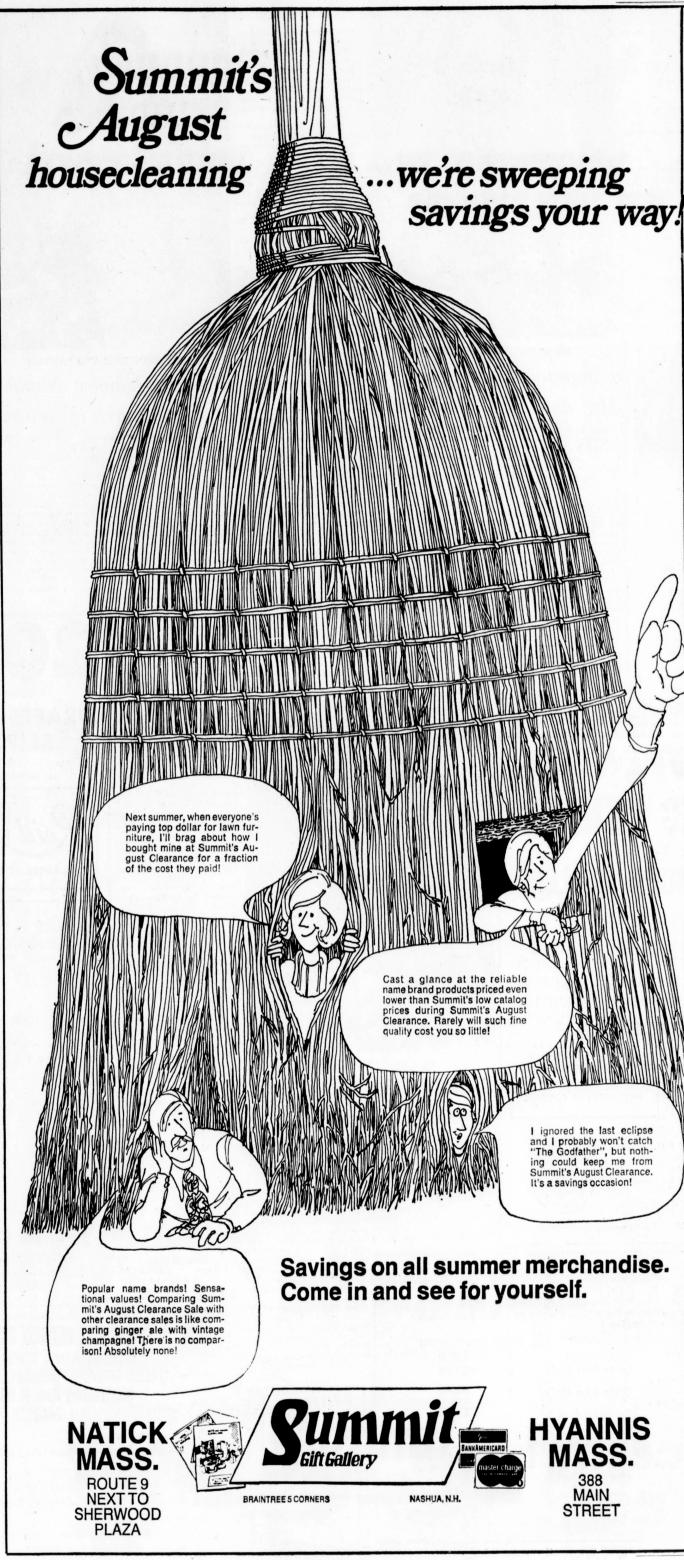

Some major operators and hotel chains already are passing along the difference.

Do Christianity and Science mix?

Jesus overruled the laws of physical science when he healed disease and overcame death. And he said that we should do even greater works. Many people today are following Jesus' example, based on an understanding applied. And they are realizing healing results.

Come this Sunday to our church service, and learn more about these spiritual laws and the Science of Christianity.

TORNADO LIFTS HOUSE, KILLS 14 YEAR OLD GIRL

A TORNADO moving across Massachusetts touched down in several communities Wednesday, killing at least one person and toppling scores of trees and power lines. An unidentified 14-year-old girl was killed at the swimming pool of the Longwood Cricket Club in Newton when she took refuge in a pool house. The club's manager said the tornado sent the house 15 feet in the air and the girl was crushed when the house came down. Four other persons at the pool were reported injured, none seriously. The tornado uprooted trees, knocked down power lines in Newton and neighboring Brookline when it struck about 4:40 p.m. but officials said there was no major property damage. About two hours earlier, the tornado hopped through three towns near the New Hampshire border, touching down first in Phillipston and then moving northeast through Templeton and Winchendon, a distance of about 10 miles.

JUDGE DELAYS HEARINGS ON BID TO OUST PRISONS HEAD

STATE SUPREME COURT Associate Justice Paul C. Reardon Wednesday put off for a week further action on a petition from the state's prison guards challenging Corrections Commissioner John O. Boone's qualifications to hold office. Also Wednesday, a special state Senate inestigating committee began its probe into conditions in the prisons system with a tour of the Massachusetts Correctional Institution at Walpole. And a private penal re-form organization offered to intercede in the growing schism between Boone and the prison guards in an effort "deescalate the tensions." Reardon, who received the petition for a declaratory judgment on Boone's qualifica-tions Tuesday, decided to put off further hearings in the case for a week after a member of Attorney General Robert H. Quinn's staff, representing Boone, Gov. Francis W. Sargent and Boone's direct superior, Human Affairs Secretary Peter C. Goldmark, said the question of the commissioner's qualifications rested solely with the attorney general.

SOUTH VIETNAMESE FORCES BOLSTERED IN HUE

FEAPING a Communist commando attack similar to the 1963 Tet offensive, South Vietnamese officials moved 600 additional troops into the former imperial capital of Hue Wednesday as North Vietnamese gunners fired nine rounds of artillery into the city, killing three persons. South Vietnamese Rangers also were rushed into a heavily jungled area only 17 miles east of Sai-gon to drive back, a 300-man Communist force which at-tacked government troops twice in three days. PRESIDENT Anwar Sadat has made no headway in efforts to set up a meeting between Egyptian and Soviet eaders to define further relations following his ouster of Russian military advisers because of Moscow's refusal to meet his weapons demands, diplomatic sources in Cairo said Wednesday. The semiofficial Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram, at the same time, said the United States would not change its policy of support for Israel despite Sadat's "Ivan, go home," orders. Egypt's ambassador to Britain met for 45 minutes with Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home in London in what diplomatic sources gaid was another cautious feeler to the west. GOP Delegates Would Oppose Graduated State Income Tax

They intend to ring the convention hall on the night President Nixon is renominated, and, of course, against the proposed graduated state income tax if they have caused speculation as to just what reforms he has had been given the opportunity to do so, according to
GOP State Committeeman Edward F. King of West

King tried to get an anti-graduated income tax plank into the Republican platform but was the victim of some fast maneuvering by GOP House Leader Francis W. Hatch, Jr., who was presiding over the convention and presumably was acting on orders from Governor Sargent.

It now develops that reports about Senator Thomas plank which said: "We support Governor Sargent's calls for the continuation of an unfair tax system which The drinking rumors came to the attention of the bears heavily on the working class and middle class Telephone 326-4000 The drinking rumors came to the attention of the bears heavily on the motaling expenditures.

That is construed as an endorsement of the proposed change in the State Constitution which would allow the adoption of a graduated state in-come tax since Governor Sargent has been beating the drums for the graduated tax and claiming it would be a reform in the tax system.

He terms the suggested constitu-tional amendment "a pig in a poke" and argues that it would give the Legislature "a blank check."

King expresses puzzlement as to why Governor Sargent is supporting the graduated tax.

Eagleton and McGovern Aide Differ On Questions Asked

Missouri Senator Thomas F. Eagleton and Frank Mankiewicz, Senator George McGovern's top aide, have sharply differing versions of the questions Eagleton was asked when he was told by McGovern that he had been chosen as the Vice Presidential nominee.

First, it is agreed by everyone that McGovern didn't ask Eagleton any questions. He simply offered his fellow Senator the Vice Presidential nomination and Eagleton, in his own words, accepted it before McGovern could change his mind.

Mankiewicz then took the phone from Mc-Govern. Eagleton insists Mankiewicz asked him one question. Mankiewicz claims he asked several questions. If he did, he didn't ask the right one.

Eagleton declares that the only question Mankievicz asked him was if he had any skeletons in his closet. He says he interpreted that as asking if there vere any scandals in his background which might be thrown in his face during the campaign. He replied in the negative.

Mankiewicz maintains that he directed several other questions to Eagleton, asking him if he had drinking or "women" problems in his past, if he ever had a law partner who was involved in a shady deal, if there had been any escapades in his youth that he should mention should mention.

It isn't important whether Mankiewicz asked these questions or not. But there is some speculation as to why Mankiewicz should say he did ask several questions and Eagleton should insist that he didn't.

Eagleton says if he had been asked about his health, he would have told about his nervous disorders and his psychiatric treatment. That is not an ordinary question, of course, and Eagleton himself says he had discussed with his wife whether he should tell McGovern about his medical problems. The answer now is an obvious one.

It also would seem that McGovern is unable to Sen. Eagleton Would Change

In a sense prisons in Massachusetts and in most other states are run by the prisoners. That has been true back through the sweep of the years.

It seems that the only justification for this would be the fact Boone did not act on a recommendation that he transfer a group of problem prisoners, including the one who killed two guards, his wife and himself, to another institution with a higher degree of security.

It may be significant that the only advocate of reform in the prison system who has come to the defense of Boone is Governor Sargent. The others have remained silent.

This ''non-prison'' Statistical machine operator rehabilitation plan for young men in the 17-24 age group is $104. a week and the maximum is $135.50. is the hope of the California based American Justice Institute (AJI), a non-profit Principal clerk and typist, organization dedicated to Boston Real Property Department-minimum salary penal reform.

According president Richard McGee, the program is aimed at Deputy sealer of weights keeping first offenders out and measures, Boston Hous-ing Inspection Department minimum salary is $135.50 a a prison system that tends to generate repeaters, as well as ese the week and the maximum is your're - locked - up - now aren't" parole system.

Note date and adult corrections agency and the state department of corrections, believe that the farther an individual penetrates the U.S. criminal ustice system "the harder it is to get them out of it.

In an interview during a New York visit he explained that the "Non-prison" plans involved county facilities scattered in cities and communities across the state. Each facility would handles about 300 offenders who would be required live there for the first 30

Establish a Model

"By establishing a model, minimum-security program in which the offender spends more time working and living in civilian society, rather then being locked up behind bars, the cost to the taxpayer is less and the offender is gradually reintegrated into civilain life," he said.

The relatively sn facilities would consist meeting rooms, a recreation center and various center and various residential quarters, McGee said. Offenders would arrive in groups of 30 and would be required to live inside for the first few weeks. Living quarters would be more like dormitories than prison

One of the key features of the program is intensive supervision. County pro-bation officers would have about men, instead of the usual 50 to 200. During their first weeks at the facility, the men would have round-theclock help from officers who would attempt to get to know as much about their youthful charges as possible.

Honesty Is Key
"There will be a self-examination period," McGee said. "The guys will have group discussions as to what probation means. Many of them nationalize their condition-we've got to get them to look at themselves honestly.

After this the men would be helped to find jobs, or job training or to return to school. They could live at or find outside living quarters. At the same time they would be meeting regularly with their supervisors, as well as

"If their homes aren't good, they can live in motellike rooms at the facility.' McGee said. "If they have a job they can pay room and board. Then we gradually lengthen the string on

The AJI plan, aided by a Ford Foundation grant extends intensive parole parole h a v e programs which existed in California for 12 years. Compared with the usual pattern of nine months' prison and 18 months' parole, the intensive parole system has turn-ed out to be twice as successful in terms of rehabilitation, he said.

San Diego is considering he AJ ''non-prison'' program, he explained, adding that state, and possibly federal, funds were available.

In terms of cost per man such facilities would cost only one-third as much as a prison," he said. "You're putting money into people instead of brick and mortar. Our facility, with limited inmates would not require kitchen facilities Instead of jailers, we would have probation officers. The emphasis would rehabilitation, and case management, not punish-

McGee said about 90 percent of all 19-to-23 yearold offenders could be ellgible for the program. He admitted, however, that one of the "stickiest" problems for the plan would be community acceptance. "Don't Want Them"

"Most people don't want them," he added. "But this can be overcome. We must get the community involved in the programs' activities. ple often fail to recognize that if the person were no under supervision he would be getting out one the street anyway undr the old system, and would be even more of a problem.

"This way it's a gradual more we change, with supervision, mo furlough, more training and more success."

Ocean Floor is New Frontier for Mining

Within the current decade, giant mining machines will be built to reach as far as 20,000 feet into the ocean and scoop mineral deposits from its floor. They will be the new tools in the battle for this hidden wealth which for the first time in history has come within humanity's grasp.

Underwater mining aiready is well under way in the shallow waters near the shore areas of many countries. What now is coming into view, according to U.N. experts, is eventual extension of such operations into the deep sea.

The experts anticipate it will still take a number of years, perhaps even several decades, before such mining operations can be developed on a really large scale, due to high cost, but a start is within sight.

Global Pact Seen Already international jockeying is taking shape between powerful political and economic interests, centering around the mineral riches of the ocean floor, prompting a majority of U.N. member states to acknowledge the need for new international over-all agreements.
The U.N.'s 86-member

Seabed Committee is now trying to determine how far can national jurisdiction of coastal nations be ched - including stretched including exclusive rights to mine the stretched seabed - and how are the limits to be drawn for the "international zone" beyond this area.

The concept of the wealth of this zone is the common heritage of all mankind was confirmed in the General Assembly's Seabed Declaration during the 25th anniversary session in 1970. Now, the Seabed Committee is working on proposals for global rules for deep sea mining to be submitted to the Conference on the Law of the Sea in 1973.

What is at stake is made clear in a document prepared for the committee yast year entitled, "Mineral Resources of the Sea," which gives an up-to-date account of the mineral wealth of the oceans and plans for its mining, offshore oil production. Other parts deal with hard minerals in the seabeds and ocean floor

Of the $7.1 billion worth of worldwide annual production of marine minerals at the beginning of this decade, the report estimates, $6.1 billion were oil and $1 billion hard

Among the latter, coal took the first place with $335 million worth of production followed by salt $173 million, sand and gravel $150 million and magnesium metal $75

Traditonal offshore mining is now going on in at least 100 undersea mines in Australia, Canada, Chile, Finland, France, Greece, Ireland, Japan, Poland, Spain, Taiwan, Turkey, Britain and the United Ireland, Japan, Poland, Spain, Taiwan, Turkey, Britain and the United States and produces such minerals as coal, iron ore, tin, nickel, copper, gold and

In addition, prospecting for heavy metals such as gold, tin and platinum has continued on and off in various subsea areas. A preliminary study has turned up traces of gem stones along the coasts of Cambodia, Thailand and South Vietnam, and of gold on the west coast of the Gulf of Thailand.

Another group of metals titanium, zirconium and thorium - has been mined from beach and dune sands in Australia, New Zealand, Ceylon, Africa, India and the United States. These are used in structural metal in the aerospace industry and in foundry sands. Heavy demand is expected to stimulate their production from high-grade deposits in shallow waters in the next

Also, a total of 300 commercial operations in 60 countries are at present concentrating on another form of sea mining -extraction of minerals dissolved in the sea water. These include magnesium compounds, bromine, heavy water, small amounts and potasium compounds.

Practically all of these operations are limited to relatively shallow within the territorial waters. The real wealth, according to U.N. experts exists in manganese modules and crusts to be found in the international deep sea zone.
The Seabed Committee's report describes this wealth

"The largest and most exceptional of the known marine mineral resources excluding petroleum are the deep-sea nodules which have potential as new sources of copper and nickel. Geological and geochemical studies on manganese nodules associated sediments have been continually pursued in the world's oceans, and prospecting for high-grade surficial manganese nodules has increased particularly during the past few years.

"Several Industrial corporations in the United States and Japan have investigated vast areas of the approximate the particular transfer of the particular t floor the abyssal floor. Exploration to date has shown that surficial nodules of exceptionally high content of copper, cobalt, nickel, manganese and other metals, are likely to be present in sufficient quantities at depths over 11,800 feet."

Economic Question Recent sampling in the Pacific and in the southern oceans around the Antarctic also show the presence of manganese nobules in sediments at depths of a few feet below the sea floor. However, it is not yet certain whether the buried nodule occur in sufficient quantities to be of economic interest.

Aside from traditional seabed mining equipment which can now reach as far as 200 feet, the report describes two entirely new deepsea mining systems which are successfully tested in 1970 - one engineered in the United States, the other in Japan.

HENRY KISSINGER, President Nixon's top foreign policy adviser, arrived in Saigon Wednesday for a series of secret meetings with President Nguyen Van Thieu, and political observers speculated he had come either to reassure Thieu or to ask him to quit. At almost the same time, North Vietnamese peace negotiator Le Duc Tho left Paris on a "routine" visit to Hanoi with a stop in Moscow and probably in Peking. Both U.S. and Communist spokesmen said the unexpected trips by the two top secret peace talk negotiators did not signal a dramatic change in the Vietnam War.

GOP BLOCKS McCLOSKEY'S BID TO CHALLENGE NIXON

REPUBLICAN'S swiftly blocked Wednesday maverick Rep. Paul N. SARGENT ACCUSED OF FABRICATING WELFARE CRISIS

HOUSE SPEAKER David M. Bartley said Wednesday Gov. Francis W. Sargent "fabricated a phoney welday over Francis W. Safgart turning to recipients and then reversing himself. "I would have damned well handled it in a different manner," Bartley said. "For six weeks," the Holyoke Democrat said, "many, many thousands of poor people suffered needless anguish because of the spectre of cutbacks raised by the governor." Sargent, at a news conference Tuesday, countermanded ious statements made by Welfare Secretary Steven A. Minter by announcing that welfare checks to recipients will not be cut on Oct. 1. On July 1, Minter, on orders from Sargent, said the 4 per cent cuts in many categories were made necessary by the legislature.

Collins' Support Of Nixon Means Close Race In State

The action of former Boston Mayor John F. Colling in agreeing to head up a Democratic campaign for President Nixon in Massachusetts means that the fight between Mr. Nixon and Senator George S. McGovern in the Bay State probably will be a close one.

Former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey years ago. Senator McGovern is not likely to carry it by any such margin this year, and as matters are developing he might not carry it at all.

Collins, until now an unswerving Democrat, will serve as a catalyst for scores of Democratic leaders and many thousands of rank and file Democrats across the Commonwealth who do not want to support and vote for Senator McGovern but have not known exactly what to do.

A substantial number of influential Democrats were brushed aside and humiliated by the McGovern organization in Massachusetts. The Democratic establishment in Massachusetts, of course, supported Senator Edmund S. Muskie in the Bay State's Presidential Primary until Muskie faded out of the political picture, and then it was too late to shift.

Chair Who?

Militant female liberators, ever sensitive to slights, real or imagined, have recently spawned a new term designed to alleviate the problem of unintentional discrimination and added it to the never ending list of new titles.

Now everyone wants to be called a "chairperson."

Just when everyone in Newton was settling down and casually referring to men and women alike as "chairman" (usually pronounced "chairmun," anyway) alderman, or selectman or congressman, up popped this latest solution to a not-so-pressing problem.

There is only one thing wrong with "chairperson."

For some unknown reason, it conjures up an image of some nameless, formless, inert nonentity confined to a chair. It suggests inaction. It even rings a bell similar to the one rung by the use of the term 'homebody

Basically, it is a petty pretension.

There are certainly a number of basic issues that "the movement" has called to our attention. There are questions of equal job opportunities and equal pay for women that urgently deserve answers.

It cannot help to cheapen the overall efforts by addressing ourselves to the trivial.

Finally, how much more equal can a woman get than when she is referred to as "Chairman"?

Auto Theft Decline

Massachusetts generally and the Greater Boston area particularly have long been identified with those areas of the country where automobile thefts are regarded as something of a way of life by police and insurance companies.

Maybe our motorists are to blame. Maybe, the young joy-riders and the professional auto thief operators in this part of the country are more adept than their counterparts elsewhere.

If we listen to those persons who strongly advocated the adoption of the so-called auto title law in Massachusetts, the high rate of stolen cars, particularly those taken for re-sale, is now about to drop precipitately.

Title Law becomes effective in Massachusetts. The tion as a delegate. Bay State has been a little on the laggard side in adopting the measure. We are the 46th State to get it on Basically, through the use of a computer, the Registry of Motor Vehicles will now be able to keep a close check on all car sales-particularly those of a casual nature in which stolen cars are usually involved. The computer, if all works out, will take the profit out of professional car-thieving.

Because the new law is somewhat complicated the Registry plans to conduct training sessions to acquaint insurance writers and automobile dealer staffs with its operation.

That will be gladly accepted by the ordinary "I favor an honorable peace in Vietnam just as the way Senator Edward M. Kennedy did with his talk motorist if, indeed, the new law cuts auto thievery and quickly as it can be negotiated," Collins declares. "I at Miami Beach. eventually leads to a drop in auto theft insurance.

It was known as Charlestown State Prison on its opening day. Down through the decades it remained Charlestown State Prison. Some of the most sensational news stories of the 19th and 20th centuries broke within its walls. Charlestown streets were jammed from curb to curb by outsiders on the August night in 1927 when Bartolomeo Vanzetti and Nicola Sacco died in State prison's electric chair.

Charlestown residents just shrugged it all off. When a new state prison was built in Walpole and the old wood and concrete disgrace of Rutherford Avenue torn down, they heaved a sigh of relief.

The correctional institutions at Walpole, Norfolk, Concord and elsewhere may acquire fancy new names. The folks of Charlestown will be able to assure the alone won't ease or eradicate unwanted publicity.

Senator George S. McGovern looked as if he were Collins feels the drastic cuts McGovern proposes Shriver as his Vice Presidential running mate.

It was the first time all the Democratic bigwigs didn't quite put it all together.

His speech, delivered in his flat, nasal twang of the South Dakota prairies, did not rouse Democratic voters the way they need to be roused.

Sargent Shriver made a better address, but neither Shriver nor McGovern really turned on the Democrats

One observer remarked that McGovern acted as if he were an actor in a musical comedy parodying an

There was some basis for that observation. But despite the blunders McGovern has made and the belief of many people that some of his ideas are too far out and would be bad for the country, it would be ridiculous at this stage to write him off as a Presidential contender.

Richard Nixon is never a sure thing in an election campeign the way Dwight Eisenhower was. Nixon simply is not an overpowering candidate. He is well ahead at this point in the Presidential race. He is a strong favorite. But he is by no means a sure thing.

McGovern at this stage is probably at a low ebb in his campaign. The Eagleton episode hurt him badly. He

The South Dakota Senator next, surprisingly, turned to former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

What was surprising about that action was that Humphrey had gone pretty far in his criticism of McGovern, especially when the two were battling for California's big bloc of 21 votes.

Seeks Changes In Election Law To End Frauds

Ed Mattar of Newton, Republican candidate for Middlesex County Commissioner, announced today taht State Representative William Robinson of Melrose, a member of the House Republican leadership, will file legislation on his behalf to amend the election laws in order to put an end to the annual practice of filing fraudulent nomination papers for public office.

Mattar said: "The legislation Mattar Said: The legislation which Re presentative Robinson has agreed to sponsor on my behalf will empower and direct local Registrars of Voters to hold all nomination papers submitted to them which show the signature of any dead person, obvious forgeries or other gross discrepancies or gross violations. The local Registrar of Voters will be required to immediately turn such papers over to the District Attorney, who shall be required by law to proceed forwith to investigate the alleged violations and submit a report to the Ballot Law Commission within five days. Where the alleged violations are proved by the District Attorney's investigation to be invalid the Ballot Commission may authorize the late filing of said papers. Where the District Attorney's investigation shows forgeries, gross discrepincies or gross violations he shall be empowered to prosecute to the fullest extent of the law."

Nomination papers filed for the Republican nomination for Middle sex County Commissioner on behalf of two candidates seeking to oppose Mattar were successfully challenged by Mrs. Ida Donadio of Medford, a Mattar campaign worker on the grounds of gross forgeries and discrepancies.

In that case the Ballot Law Commission agreed with Mattar that the affair should be referred to the District Attorney for investigation. Both Mrs. Donadio's signature and that of Representative Robinson's wife, Eleanor were found on the phoney papers.

Mattar said: "Phoney nomination papers have been a way of life in Massachusetts. have cost the taxpayer R great deal of money and have been used as harassment devices against legitimate candidates. Up to now local Registrars have been powerless to act.

From 1963 to the present he has worked tirelessly to achieve success in his field: at first selling insurance while attending Boston College, then after graduation the courses at Boston University and Northeastern which finally led to his attainment of the coveted Chartered Life Underwriter designation after his name.

dent sent him into Pensylvania to try to speed up assistance for the victims of Hurricane Agnes. The so-called "fraud squad" in the State Welfare Department has a rather strange way of doing things. It is common knowledge that the most expensive welfare abuse is the vendor fraud involving false billings or over- charges by persons who provide services for welfare recipients.

Raymond F. Jowdy, director of the fraud squad, admits that in terms of money the major abuses are committed by vendors but adds that the sophisticated nature of this kind of cheating makes it more difficult to track down. That unquestionably is true, but it sounds as if the fraud squad is concentrating on the

Capello Club Bows To Framingham In Stan Musial League Playoffs

The Newton Capello Club's post-season plans for seeking vengeance against the Waltham Capitals in the Stan Musial League playoffs died a quick death, last week. Capello, second-place finisher to the Caps during the regular campaign was eliminated in the first round of the North Atlantic Regional playoffs, two games to one, by Framingham, South Middlesex Division champ.

Framingham capt ured the opening game of the series, 8 · 5, on the strength of a four run outburst in the fourtinining off Capello starter Ralph Calitri. Calitri, who blanked the Caps on two hits in his last effort of the season, wasn't nearly as effective versus the Tigers. Calitri went to the showers after four innings, trailing 50.

Colin Clapton came on in relief, but was touched for three more runs, one in the eighth. In toto, Capello hurling surrendered 15 Framingham hits.

Capello made a game effort to get back in contention and worked the score up to 6 · 5 by the end of the seventh frame. However, Ted Barnacle, whowas frequently in trouble responded to his second life formance.

NO BOMBSHELLS IN NIXON'S RENOMINATION SPEECH

President Nixon stood ready Wednesday to accept his party's nomination and disclose a second-term plan for a world of peace, but without any bombshell announcement on the Vietnam War. More than 7,000 police and federal troops were under orders to make sure antiwar demonstrators — their ranks now swo llen to 4,500—cannot carry out their battle plan to block traffic and force Nixon to deliver his nationally televised acceptance speech before a half empty Miami Beach convention hall. The delegates' last routine business before hearing Nixon's 4,000 word, half-hour address was to shout their approval of another four year term for Vice President Spiro T. Agnew. Agnew's press seceretary, Vic Gold, dis-missed as "pure fiction" a report that the President had assured Agnew of his support for the 1976 presidential nomination over anyone else, including John B. Connally, Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said Nixon's speech would discuss "the great issues of 1972 at home and throughout the world. But he cautioned against expecting "any major new announcements" about the war.

POLICE USE 50 DERELECT BUSES TO FEND OFF PROTESTERS

POLICE parked 50 derelict buses bumper-to-bumper Wednesday at Miami Beach, hoping they would help them keep war protesters from their avowed goal of preventing Republican Convention delegates from hearing President Nixon's acceptance speech, Police apparently intended to use the line of buses on one side and a strong chain-link fence on the other as a corridor through which delegates could freely pass to enter the hall for the final session of the 1972 convention. A police spokesman said he hoped a "physical confrontation" with the protesters could be avoided. Protest leaders vowed to fill the jails in their determination.

PROBE SEEKS INFORMATION FROM STANS ON GOP SPENDING

AN INVESTIGATOR has been sent to Miami Beach to obtain more information from former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans for the General Accounting Office audit of Republican spending, it was learned Wednesday in Washington. Sources said Philip S. Hughes, director of GAO's federal election office, flew to the GOP convention city late Tuesday after the GAO delayed release of the audit which was sparked by the attempt of five men to bug the Democratic National Committee headquarters in the early morning hours of June 17. Funds from the GOP's Committee to Re-elect President Nixon allegedly wound up in the bank account of Bernard Barker, one of the suspects arrested in the bugging attempt.

COMMUNIST GUNNERS POUND DA NANG WITH HUGE ROCKETS

COMMUNIST GUNNERS — perhaps paving the way for a future attack on Da Nang — opened up on the city with huge 88-pound rockets for the first time in the war Wednesday, fired a number of smaller mortar rounds at the nearby South Vietnamese base at Marble Mountain and shelled a district capital to the south. It was the first time in the war the Communists have used 140mm rockets, which have a range of six miles. Some 80 miles to the north, South Vietnamese warplanes destroyed five Communist tanks in battered Quang Tri City which the South Vietnamese have been trying to recapture since June 28.

ULSTER SNIPER KILLS BRITISH SOLDIER

SNIPER FIRE killed a British soldier in Andersonstown Wednesday, and in downtown Belfast troops blew up a car containing a 100-pound bomb after moving several hundred persons from the city hall area where the vehicle was abandoned. A series of other bombings smashed a newly rebuilt hotel, a store and a bedding factory. A sniper firing from an apartment block in Andersonstown shot a patrolling British soldier in the head and killed him, an army spokesman said. There were four other shooting incidents in West Belfast.

PHONE CO.'S RATE HIKE REQUEST UNDER FIRE

The NEW ENGLAND Telephone Co.'s request for a $61 million "emergency" rate hike came under fire Wedresday from a cabinet secretary, the attorney general, and a legislative chairman. The company's request Tuesday for the increase represents the company's unwilling. ness to accept an 11-month postponement by the Depart-ment of Public Utilities of its earlier request for a $122 million rate hike, according to Consumer Affairs Secre-tary William I. Cowin. Attorney General Robert H. Quinn called the latest request the manifestation of a "cavalier attitude" on the part of the utility. Rep. Robert B. Ambler, D-Weymouth, charged the company's proposal "is just one more example of a utility monopoly attempting to regulate the governmental agency which is supposed

WALPOLE SYSTEM URGED TO "SEGREGATE TROUBLEMAKERS"

THE ESTABLISHMENT of an internal classification system at Walpole State Prison must be achieved carefully to avoid trouble from the inmates, the prison's superintendent said Wednesday in Boston. Supt. Robert W. Donnelly, who leaves his post in eight days, told a Special Legislative Committee on Prisons an internal classitication system would allow the prison administrators to "segregate the troublemakers" from other inmates. But warned that the system would have to be set up gradually to avoid a "desperate, bloody struggle." Donnelly said in his opinion a classification system is a "basic, must change."

WESTON HOUSEWIFE MAY SUE MIAMI BEACH HOTEL

A WESTON, Mass., housewife who paid $10,000 to advertise her antiwar views during the Republican National Convention said Wednesday she may sue the Fontainebleau Hotel, Miami Beach, for allegedly denying her telephone service. Mrs. Kay Worden, who used her own money to pay for full-page ads in Miami newspapers, said the hotel's switchboard operators were screening calls from sympathizers who wanted to express their antiwar sentiments. Mrs. Worden said she may sue the hotel for invasion of privacy.

He found the country casual, nationalistic and busy.

In his capacity as a public official, the alderman added a personal touch to his visit by extending official greetings to Mayor Teddy Kollek of Jerusalem in the form of a proclamation.

Mayor Kollek responded by saying that if he was ever in the neighborhood, he would drop in.

Gaynor said he was struck by the mayor's apparent casualness; indeed, the casual atmosphere of the city itself, but could not help noting that Mayor Kollek, facing the resonsibilities of that any mayor must confront, has additional realities with which commented, deals with a special city. The fact that it it Jesusalem, a holy city for many religious sects, makes it special in the first place. Added to that are questions of dealing with its rapid urban development and keeping the waters calm for its Jewish, Christian and Arab inhabitants.

The alderman said he did not see signs of the expected antagonism between the sects living in the city.

"Maybe that's because there was more oppression of the Arabs before the war in 1967,"

Security, he admitted remained tight in the country and although natives appeared relatively unconcerned, outsiders would naturally notice the soldiers patroling the streets. At the airport, he added, security is extremely

Finding a proper location for the distribution of methadone is definitely not the only controversial thing

The use of the drug in an attempt to help opiate addicts is itself a source of great concern among experts in the field. The merit of methadone treatment is an argument that really belongs among them.

The question of the location of a methadona clinic is easier to tackle; and when it came to light last week that McLean Hospital in Belmont intends to open its own clinic, it was welcome news.

Addiction implies a multiplicity of problems, social, mental and physical; and the treatment of addets is a proper function of a hospital because any additional services needed by the addict are always immediately available. In addition to emergency services, expertise in the various branches of medicne is also available from other members of a hospital staff.

By the same token, we cannot find fault with the staff of the Regenisis Clinic now located in the First Church of Newton, because its reason for existing was to meet a need that had not been met by any other existing methadone clinic.

Regenisis has always had troubles with finding a location to operate and has been forced into a string of temporary homes. We commend the First Church for its cognizance of the clinic's plight and its awareness of the crucial social issue of drug addiction.

In addition, we hope that every effort will be made by McLean Hospital and the Regenisis staff to come to a reasonable solution.

The foremost consideration in the situation has to be what is best for the people burdened with a drug addiction; and if all parties realize that they can best be helped in a hospital setting, we hope approprate steps will be taken to get them there.

Lost — A Legacy

Boston newspapers waxed esctatic for days and her Mayor and Board of Aldermen were beginning to think tall silk hats, formal coats and striped pants should be adopted as a way of life for Hub officials after Sept. 1, 1897.

That was a big day in Boston. That was the day when the first transit subway was opened on the North American continent. Making the short run from an open end of the tunnel on Boylston street to a station called Park street, was an open air trolley car equipped with long benches. The benches carried several coats of heavy varnish. Gleaming paint covered the metal. Those privileged to ride were indeed, "VERY IMPORTANT PERSONS."

Trolley No. 1752, which made the initial trip has gone the way of all open trolleys-save those in museums. The West End Street Railway which then dominated city transit, has long since been absorbed in the success of private and public organizations dedicated to getting Bostonians from one place to another.

Once, in the interim which has followed, the road known as the Boston Elevated or simply the Boston El dominated the picture.

For years it ranked among the world's big city transport systems. Its leadership, its ability to stay abreast of the times made it outstanding. It's decline went unnoticed at the start. It was hastened as age took its toll on men like Edward Dana.

James Knox Polk, the 11th President, served one term and died three months later. He was 53 years old at the time of his death.

Zachary Taylor, known as "Old Rough and Ready," was elected President in 1848 but lived only 16 months of his term. He died of typhus.

GOP Convention Once Denied Renomination To President

Republican historians recalled with some pride that in 1884 the independent-minded delegates to the GOP national convention refused to renominate a sitting President for a second term.

The President was Chester A. Arthur who had made an enormous number of enemies within his own party, and this proved politically fatal to him. Arthur died two years later in 1886. He would not have lived out his term if he had been reelected.

Such a thing would not be likely to happen today because of the power and patronage of the Presidency. Most delegates attending the 1948 Democratic national convention in Philadelphia expectthat Harry S. Truman would be defeated by Tho-

"Without atomic energy, civilization as we know it, will cease."

These are the words of Glenn Seaborg, one of the foremost authorities on the peacetime uses of the atom and former head of the AEC.

What he is referring to is the energy crisis that faces all industrialized societies.

Quite simply: our need for power is increasing while our supply of natural fuel resources is decreasing.

These are the fossil fuels that cannot be replaced. If we keep using them up at our present rate of growth, they will in time be virtually exhausted. Boston Edison believes that we must conserve these resources. One way to do just that is here. Nuclear power.

Boston Edison is building a nuclear power generating plant in Plymouth: Pilgrim Station.

In all, three nuclear power plants are now in operation in New England and three others are under construction. And six additional nuclear plants have been announced for the future.

New England produces only 4 percent of the total electric energy of the United States but has turned out 25% of all nuclear power produced to date in the country.

Why nuclear plants?

One reason, we believe, is that nuclear power is the most realistic hope we have at this time of generating electric power in the quantities people will need.

Without stripping the nation of its resources. Without doing serious injury to the environment.

The GOP establishment ran the Republican convention. The shadow of Richard M. Nixon loomed over everything that was done in the convention hall. A few Republican liberals, headed by Senator Jacob Javits of New York, who wanted to dump Spiro Agnew, were disregarded.

The reason was that Spiro Agnew will be a strong candidate for the Presidential nomination in 1976 if Mr. Nixon is reelected next November.

From the statements made by the GOP liberals. however, it seemed clear that Spiro would face a real fight at the '76 conclave unless Nixon intervenes and strongly supports him. That is considered unlikely at this point.

The purpose of the drive by Governor Francis Sargent, Senator Jacob Javits and other liberals to change the makeup of future Republican national conventions was to make it more difficult for Agnew to get the Presidential nomination in 1976.

Franny Lawrence of Sandy Valley road has just returned from eight weeks in Appalachia where she participated in a home repair project sponsored by the American Friends Service Committee and her enthusiastic response to the question "How did it go?" is "It was an absolutely incredible experience!"

And no wonder.

Franny was one of twenty young people from all over the country who lived and worked together in a small, rural town in West Virginia building porches, painting houses, repairing roofs, putting siding on homes and even building an entire room almost from scratch. None of them had any previous experience in such work, all of them were high school students (Franny graduated from the Windsor School in Boston in June and will enter Trinity College this fall) and each one brought home a new sense of awareness of other people's problems and a spirit of comradarie that can't be matched anywhere.

NIXON PREPARES FOR HAWAII SUMMIT MEETING WITH TANAKA PRESIDENT NIXON prepared Wednesday for sum mit meetings with Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka in Hawaii aimed at smoothing the ruffled feelings of America's strongest ally. The President predicted on the eve of his departure that the two days of conference would yield progress toward removing the United States' chronic trade deficit with Japan, currently running at $4.3 billion a year. "Japanese-American friendship and cooperation is the linchpin of peace in the Pacific and we are going to try to strengthen that linchpin in these meetings," he said. The President, accompanied by first lady Pat Nixon, Secretary of State William P. Rogers and an entourage of high-level officials was scheduled to arrive at Hickham Air Force Base, site of the opening battle of World War II, at 4:30 p.m. following a five hour

McGOVERN COURTS JEWISH VOTE IN NEW YORK RALLY

SEN. GEORGE S. McGOVERN courted the Jewish vote Wednesday with a charge that President Nixon's commitment to the defense of Israel would fade if the Soviet Union eased its pressure in the Mediterranean. In a day aimed at broadening his base of support, McGovern also praised former President Lyndon B. Johnson and said he would offer asylum in the United States to South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu if he decided to flee his nation once the war ends. RICHARDSON TAGS WELFARE PLAN "SCATTER-BRAINED"

HEW SECRETARY Elliott L. Richardson said Wednesday in Washington that Sen. George S. McGovern's welfare proposal was a "costly and scatter-brained scheme" which would force a major tax increase. "The money will have to come from somewhere and that somewhere would certainly mean a major tax increase." Richardson, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, said in a statement at a news conference. McGovern Tuesday proposed a guarantee of at least $4,000 a year for a family of four and the closing of $22 billion a year in tax loopholes. He said most people would pay no additional tax. Richardson charged the McGovern proposal calls for raising $52 billion to finance the welfare plan. "Sen McGovern, it would seem, simply doesn't un-derstand the issue or is obscuring the economic realities with the fuzzy use of selected figures" Richardson said.

CORRECTIONS DEPT. HIT IN NORFOLK DEATHS PROBE

NORFOLK County District Attorney George Burke accused Corrections Department officials We nesday of decisions that "led directly" to the deaths of four persons in a shooting incident at the Norfolk Prison Colony on July 31. A special investigation committee, appointed by Corrections Commissioner John O. Brone, concluded previously that, given conditions at Norfolk at the time, the incident was "unavoidable." During a visit from his wife shortly after 9 a.m., Elliott drew two handguns, shot a guard fatally, then shot and killed a civilian employe. Later, in an isolated prison dormitory, Elliott shot and killed his wife, Katherine, and then took his own life. The investigation into the incident ordered by Boone concluded the motive for the incident was a "suicide-love" pact. Burke told a special Senate Investigating Committee his office had informed Norfolk Supt. George H. Bohlinger III on four occasions 'n mid and late July that Elliott was armed with two guns and was prepared to lead an escape attempt. Bohlinger asked Corrections Dept. officials in Boston twice by telephone to authorize the transfer of five ostensible escapers to Waipole State Prison. On both occasions, Bohlinger was asked to put the request in writing for a

Former Congressman Launches Campaign

Former U.S. Representative Laurence Curtis, who was deprived of his House seat by redistricting in the early 1960s, and now an announced candidate for Congress from the Third Congressional District, spoke to about 100 area supporters at the Holiday Inn in Leominster last night.

Curtis, who earlier served on the House Foreign Affairs Committee, made a plea that he be returned to Congress to "take up the job I started."

The veteran legislator faces three other opponents in the Republican primary election scheduled for September 19. They include, state Rep. Robert A. Belmonte, Avi Nelson, and state Rep. Martin Linsky. The victor will face incumbent U.S. Rep. Robert F. Drinan in the Nov. 7 elec-

Fun As An Investment

Another playground season is closed in Newton and its record inscribed in the archives of the city's lighter community life.

It is a happy document bursting with the fun hours of the thousands of local small fry who made merry and laughed the summer away at the city's many play, grounds and play areas.

But, alas for the little people, the melancholy days are upon them, when school bells sound the knell of the carefree life and the approach of another round with books and blackboards.

The end of the playground season also lights up the "Applause" sign for the Newton Recreation Department, an organization richly deserving of the commendation of our citizens.

There are many facets to the service rendered by Recreation Commissioner John B. Penney and his group, and the service is a twelve month thing.

However, Commissioner Penny and his corps of dedicated young men and women playground supervisors annually write a bright chapter of summer-time achievement which stands alone and distinctive amid the yearly record.

It is a dedication to children, of all colors and creeds. Its ingredients are happiness, organized play and safety. Could any civic service be more laudable? Surely, this can be considered an investment in tomorrow-today.

The Field Day programs at the close of the season feature many forms of healthful, clean competition where some youngsters win while others lose. This jousting for honors teaches some of the fundamentals of the life awaiting the youthful competitors, how to lose, and equally important, how to win. For those who do not compete, there are arts and crafts galore in the charge of trained supervisors.

The teeming young life of the playgrounds is the annual summer responsibility of the Recreation Department, which must make this life interesting, healthful, instructive — and safe. This it does to the point of becoming a summer tradition in Newton. And for this we extend a most appreciative "Well Done" to John B. Penney and company.

He and his associates have again demonstrated admirably that fun can be an investment in future community well-being.

Labor Day

Labor Day in the United States is one of the newest of our national holidays. It was not until June 28, Cabinet post, asserting that he wants to finish his term 1894, that Congress yielded to mounting pressure and passed a bill designating such a holiday. It is signifi-cant that only two years previously, in 1892, did Great Britain permit its first National Labor Day celebration.

For many years trade unions, various socialist parties and their allies and sympathizers observed a form of Labor Day, almost exclusively in major indus-trial countries, on May 1 each year. When the U.S.S.R. became the government of Russia, Soviet leaders embraced the May 1 date as though it had been a choice of

They maintain that it is unfair and unsound to judge Mrs. Hicks on the basis of her showing in Boston's mayoralty contest last year when she was defeated by Mayor Kevin H. White who was making a terrific comeback after a losing bid for the Governorship in 1970.

Her backers declare that people, who would not vote to elect Louise Day Hicks Mayor, will vote to keep her in Congress.

Cawley and Hennigan reply that Mrs. Hicks has climbed the political hill too many times, that this is candidates in the Republican congressional race, but gress in her quest for reelection.

The arguments which swirl around Mrs. Hicks and the uncertainty she creates are what makes this fight an intriguing one. She has been forced to spend most of her time in Washington when Congress was in session and has done much of her campaigning on weekends.

The three blacks in the contest are Melvin Miller, Hubert (Hubie) Jones and Enoch O'D Woodhouse. Moakley adherents say their man would have won that fight except for the presence of a third candidate, David Nelson, a black, in the field.

That's why The Lawn Doctor treats each individually.

The Simmons lawn is plagued with crab grass. The Joneses across the street have chinch bugs galore. Their neighbors, the Glucks just down the block, have unsightly bare spots all over their front yard. All three families purchase a lawn service program. And all three get the same treatment: A fast once-over by a eader applying chemicals in uniform doses. It's like taking cough medicine for an earache. But you're smart. You rely on the professionals in lawn care: Auto-Lawn. First, The Lawn Doctor comes out and gives your lawn a thorough physical examination. Based on his diagnosis, a year round custom program is developed. And, using special patented equipment, Auto-Lawn's medicine and turf health builders are applied in the exact doses prescribed. With Auto-Lawn, beautiful things happen pear. Your turf gets lusher and greener. And compliments start pouring in from your neighbors, the Simmons, the Joneses and the Glucks.

Old and New Blend for The Tourist in Tokyo

Hotels such Imperial and New Otani in Tokyo, Plaza and Toyo in Osaka and International in Kyoto rate top marks among veteran travelers for their accommodations, facilities and services.

But for Americans with a spirit of adventure there are off the beaten tourist track resorts with delightful Japanese ryokans (inns) where about the only concession to the occasional foreign guest is a westernstyle lavatory.

I made my first overnight visit to a ryokan on a tour arranged by Japan Air Lines for guests on its press inaugural flight from New York to Tokyo via Anchorage. Flying time is about 16 hours or about its about 16 hours, or about six hours less than the JAL routing via San Francisco and Honolulu for travelers from the U.S. east coast. From Tokyo, it took about 31/2 hours by plane and bus to reach the Kakuunro Hotel in the hot spring spa of Yuwaku ner Kanazawa on the Sea of Japan across Honshu island. We flew to Komatsu aboard an All-Nippon F27 turboprop, skirting Mt. Fuji and the snow-covered mountains of the Japanese Alps in the central region.

The 90-minute bus ride from Komatsu took us past flat farmlands, mirror-like flooded rice paddies, and villages of tra ditional Japanese homes of wood crowned with roofs of tile.

The Hakuunro Hotel is on the outskirts of Kanazawa, about 1,000 feet up in the hills overlooking a lake It. was built in 1932 but has been modernized and expanded and now offers about 100 rooms, including 30-odd in an air-conditioned wing built down one side of the hill.

We were bowed into the lobby where a middle-aged maid assigned to our room took our shoes (you get them back when you leave) and then led us to our quarters. Actually, it was a suite, consisting of a large dining-sleeping area with a low table and cushions, separated by sliding screen panels from a small living room with a western-type sofa and two chairs, a tiny kitchenette, dressing room private bath with sunken tub and a separate western-style toilet. There also were a chest of drawers, a clothes closet and a color television

The maid motioned us to remove our clothes and handed my room mate and me a light cotton robe called a yukata, a cloth belt, a heavy outer kimono, and a pair of clogs which was all we wore during our stay.
